Create- On Homepage User uses map to place pin, OR just uses a form without Google API(if Google API isn't friendly... to make an mvp). A form is pulled up that allows the input of a name, a descriptive location, latitude and longitude coordinates, and select from a list of features to describe the site, as well as a text box to add additional creator comments.

User is notified of successful creation.

After a successful creation, the campsite will have it's own info page displaying the information just entered as well as an option to add a comment with a rating.

Edit- A User will have a list of created campsites in their profile so they can monitor pictures added, comments added, etc. This is one of 2 ways a user can reach an option to edit a Campsite. The other way is to locate the site on the map OR possibly through some kind of search mechanism if we have time. The edit will allow the creator or admin the ability to change all information about the Campsite itself.

Delete- Same as the edit feature, there are two places where a creator can delete (disable) a campsite through the profile or through our location/search locator options. A prompt to double check and maybe spell the name of the site would probably be useful.

View- Nonusers and Users can access the Campsite Information pages of all campsites by finding them on the map or through any way we give them. The Campsite Information page highlights one main picture of the campsite, the campsite name and location, a list of the features, and a list of comments with ratings.

Create- Any user can add pictures to a campsite?

Edit- Stretch goal add photoshop

Delete- To prevent complexity and adding a button where it isn't needed, Users cannot delete campsite photos, even if it is their own picture they shared (In the MVP). That privilege belongs on the camp creator's and an admin. For now, Admins can be contacted to remove photos.

View- Nonusers and Users can see all of the associated pictures to a campsite. Or Nonusers can only see the main pic? Depending on how nice we feel.
